City teens' film poking fun at Indian stereotypes hits YouTube

JESSICA PICHE
for Metro Calgary

While most university students spend their spare time at the campus bar, Bhaveek Makan was writing, filming and producing a feature-length Bollywood-style movie in between his studies.

The 19-year-old Mount Royal student partnered with his brother, Jashan Makan, 16, to make Eat Ghee, a tale about an Indian boy with an unusual background. In the works for the past year, the finished film was released yesterday on YouTube.

"There's not a lot of Indian movies coming out of Calgary," said Makan. "We wanted to bring attention to the community by taking typical stereotypes and making them something we could laugh about."

YOUTUBE.COM

A scene from Eat Ghee, a Bollywood-style YouTube film.

Makan also drew on his experience coming to Canada from South Africa as a young boy.

"The culture shock I felt is shown in the film in an exaggerated way."

Already garnering attention from the online community, the Makans are no strangers to movie making. They won the Young Renegade Award for their film Experts Say in the 2009 Calgary Youth by Youth Cinema Competition.

The dramatic short was only seven minutes long, but sparked their desire to continue movie making.

"They're always picking up the camera," said mother Darshana Makan.

The brothers are self-taught, using equipment they purchased or received over the years. Friends and family, including their parents, acted in the film, thus their only costs were time and energy.

Lead actress Azra Lallany, 18, credited Makan as the reason her acting in the movie came with ease.

"He's an amazing director who told us just what to do," she said. "I definitely want to be in their next movie."

Music producer Naanak Sodhi, 16, said he is confident that the team will find success in the future.

"We're going to Hollywood."

Guilty plea in Citadel blaze

CRIME A Calgary man has admitted to failing to call the fire department or notify neighbours when a fire broke out in his illegal grow operation.

The fire spread, destroying five homes in total and severely damaging three others.

Russell Hugh McDougall, 38, pleaded guilty yesterday to arson by negligence.

Police determined a grow operation in the basement of a home McDougall was renting sparked the fire in December 2009. In an agreed statement of facts, McDougall admitted he had a grow operation in the home.

He arrived at his home just as the fire started and tried to rescue his two pets, but was unsuccessful and ran away.

Court heard that phone records showed McDougall made phone calls as the fire was burning, but none to 911. It was also stated that he did not make any attempt to inform neighbours of the fire.

Eleven people escaped their homes with only the clothes on their backs. Four dogs and eight cats were killed and 12 vehicles burned.

The total damage was estimated at over $4 million.

No one was injured.

Heavy smoke result of construction fire

Firefighters responded to multiple reports of thick black smoke on 8 Avenue between 4 and 5 streets SW. Building materials on a third floor roof atrium under construction were on fire, according to fire officials. Two workers were assessed on the scene by paramedics. Damage is estimated at $25,000. The cause of the fire is unknown at this time. METRO CALGARY

GRAD An Alberta teen can don his Scottish kilt for his Grade 12 graduation next month. Hamish Jacobs, 19, had asked the principal of his high school in Raymond earlier this month, but the principal told him all boys were required to wear dress pants, dress shoes, and a collared shirt when they accept their diploma. After increased media scrutiny, the school backed off the policy, allowing Jacobs to wear the kilt.

Calgary top eco-city? Survey says yes

Criteria measured include air pollution, traffic congestion, water treatment

Calgary is being heralded as the top ecological city in the world by a prestigious international think-tank.

The Mercer Quality of Living Survey released yesterday ranked Calgary No. 28 on its overall quality-of-living list, but gave the city top spot in a new ecology ranking. The "eco-city" ranking includes criteria such as water availability, water potability, waste removal, sewage, air pollution and traffic congestion.

Hawkesworth

"In one way it's confirmation of what we suspected, but given the breadth of the survey and the number of cities being included, we've done surprisingly well," said Ald. Bob Hawkesworth. "I know that as we've been implementing new initiatives we know we've been leading the pack in many ways."

Calgary's director of environmental and safety management, David Day, acknowledges the criteria used by Mercer are pretty specific.

"I think that the work we're doing in terms of water treatment, water conservation and the quality of the water — those are the kind of leading indicators that Mercer is interested in its quality of life ratings," noted Day.

However, Calgary isn't quite as lily white environmentally as the survey would suggest, said Byron Miller, a University of Calgary geography professor, who specializes in urban planning and sprawl.

"Frankly the Mercer eco-city ranking strikes me as being quite odd in terms of what they're measuring," Miller said.

Miller is puzzled why things such as per capita energy use would not be considered or the problem of urban sprawl. Calgary ranks far worse than much larger cities such as New York on that front.

IPad finally makes its way to Canada

TECHIES With the iPad set to hit Canada tomorrow, Calgary stores are preparing for the rush.

Apple's newest product will officially go on sale at 8 a.m. and there are sure to be lineups at Apple retailers, Best Buy and Future Shop stores across the city.

"It's just like any other exclusive launch, we'll probably have some people lined up before the doors open," said Vincent, a manager at the Heritage Meadows Future Shop.

While the Apple store will be opening early on Friday, Future Shop will be opening at their regular time of 10 a.m.

Although the iPad has been available in the United States for nearly two months, Canadians have had to wait.

Self-professed "hardcore Apple user" Duane Sharman decided to avoid the lines and pre-ordered the iPad on May 10, the first day pre-ordering was available in Canada.

"I got the email telling me yesterday that it's shipped, so I'm hoping for a UPS guy at the door any moment now," he said.

Sharman said he has yet to try the iPad, but was confident that he wouldn't be disappointed with the Apple product.

"I've seen a couple of them when I was travelling, but I haven't been rude enough to actually go up and ask someone if I can try it," he joked.

Apple has not released the number of iPads that will be available in Canada.

Morton slams move for national securities regulator

FINANCE Alberta's finance minister lashed out yesterday against Ottawa's move to create a national securities regulator, saying it would siphon talent and investment away from Western Canada and toward Toronto.

If the new federal watchdog ends up being based in Toronto, as would likely be the case, Ted Morton said he fears Alberta's investment bankers, brokers, accountants and others in the financial services industry will be drawn eastward in a "giant vortex."

"If the Alberta Securities Commission is basically shut down and we move everything in to Toronto, you're going to see a tremendous outflow of personnel," Morton said.

Morton

"That will set back the movement to build the financial services sector and to diversify Alberta's economy by, if not decades, certainly by years."

Morton said he takes little comfort in federal Finance Minister Jim Flaherty's assurance that the centralized regulator would have strong regional offices where there are currently 13 distinct provincial and territorial commissions.

"I see no long-term reassurance of a regional office staying in Vancouver or Calgary for longer than any federal government wants it," he said.

Morton said the current system works just fine as it is, noting it is highly regarded internationally. Currently, each province makes and enforces its own rules, but regulatory approvals in one region are recognized by others under the "passport" system.

Police seek potentially dangerous man

KNIFEPOINT Police are looking for a potentially dangerous man who fled the scene of an attempted robbery Tuesday afternoon.

Duong Huynh Cao, 43, is facing 11 outstanding warrants all related to crimes committed against one woman, according to Staff Sgt. Mark Hatchette.

Around 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, police were called to the Bank of Montreal in Marlborough Mall from where Cao had just fled.

He is alleged to have attempted to force a woman at knifepoint to take out thousands of dollars from her account but she was able to break away and notify bank staff. Police learned that Cao had been in a relationship with the 57-year-old woman and is alleged to have committed two similar acts of assault and threats of deaths against her since December.

Cao is described as an Asian man, with black hair and brown eyes. He is five feet, five inches tall and weighs 130 pounds. Those with information should call police at 403-266-1234.

A new study says Canada's population could exceed 40 million by 2036. Teen pregnancies down 36.9%: Study

GROWING UP The rate of teen pregnancies in Canada dropped 36.9 per cent between 1996 and 2006, according to research released yesterday by the Sex Information and Education Council of Canada.

The teen pregnancy rate also dropped 25 per cent in the U.S. during the same period, and 4.75 per cent in England and Wales. It increased by 19.1 per cent in Sweden.

Reducing socio-economic inequality is the most significant factor in teen pregnancy rates, according to research co-ordinator Alexander McKay.

Rates of teenage pregnancy, for example, are higher in pockets of poverty in the U.S.

Quality sex education and easy access to health services must be maintained to keep teen pregnancy levels low, McKay added.

"Complacency could quickly lead to a reversal."

The council is a national registered charitable organization and receives funding from the makers of Trojan condoms.

MPs get low score in poll

A new poll suggests Canadians overwhelmingly believe their members of Parliament are breaking the rules on expense claims.

The Canadian Press Harris-Decima survey is bad news for MPs who have collectively rejected a request by auditor general Sheila Fraser to examine half a billion dollars in annual spending.

Sheila Fraser

The poll of 1,000 respondents found 80 per cent believe it likely MPs are claiming expenses against the rules, and just 12 per cent think it unlikely.

The survey follows high-profile news coverage of expense claim scandals in Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and Britain.

Fully 85 per cent of those surveyed by Harris-Decima said they were concerned about the MPs' refusal to let Fraser look at their books, including 52 per cent who said they were very concerned.

The poll also suggests that any party leader who endorses the auditor general's request will come out a winner — although a plurality of 45 per cent say they won't change their partisan support. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rig worker: BP took 'shortcuts'

Senior managers complained oil giant BP was "taking shortcuts" by replacing heavy drilling fluid with saltwater in the well that blew out, triggering the massive oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico, according to witness statements obtained by The Associated Press.

Truitt Crawford, a roustabout for drilling rig owner Transocean LTD, told coast guard investigators about the complaints.

The seawater, which would have provided less weight to contain surging pressure from the ocean depths, was being used to prepare for dropping a final blob of cement into the well.

"I overheard upper management talking saying that BP was taking shortcuts by displacing the well with saltwater instead of mud without sealing the well with cement plugs, this is why it blew out," Crawford said in his statement.

A spokesman for BP, which was leasing the rig Deepwater Horizon when it exploded April 20, killing 11 workers and triggering a massive oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico, declined to comment.

Meanwhile, the statements from workers ahead of a hearing in New Orleans yesterday and a U.S. congressional memo about a BP internal investigation of the blast indicated warning signs were ignored.

Tests less than an hour before the well blew out found a buildup of pressure that was an "indicator of a very large abnormality," BP's investigator said, according to the memo. There were other signs of problems, including an unexpected loss of fluid from a pipe known as a riser five hours before the explosion.

Practise random acts of kindness

Relating

There seems to be something a bit futile in the scientific study of human relationships. Countless very smart people bring real scientific rigour to bear the subject, but often attain no more insight than the average pop song or episode of Oprah.

This week's example: A study out of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, published in the June issue of Personal Relationships, suggests the key to happy coupledom may be simple gratitude.

Researchers studied 67 couples who had been together for at least three months and had each partner keep a nightly diary for two weeks, detailing favours they did for the other, as well as favours the other did for them along with their emotional responses.

These being real couples, the kindnesses that participants recorded went undetected almost half the time, but when they actually noticed and felt gratitude, there was a strong correlation with feelings of connectedness.

So there you go. Be nice to each other, don't take each other's niceness for granted and everything should be, uh, nice.

It may sound like the latest findings from the Centre for the Study of the Crashingly Obvious, but much of the research into relationships is aimed either at proving or disproving the folk wisdom we've been relying on for generations to keep the peace between us.

And this is far from the first study linking gratitude to a stronger relationship, and to happiness in general, a condition that seems most easily achieved by those who are in the habit of counting their blessings.

The researchers made a distinction between actual feelings of gratitude and a mere sense of indebtedness or obligation, which, while it will serve to keep a couple together, doesn't form the same Krazy Glue emotional bond between them.

The kindnesses, this study found, didn't have to be over-the-top: "Events such as one partner planning a celebratory meal when the other partner gets a promotion, taking the children to the zoo so the other partner can have some quiet time, or stopping to pick up the other partner's favourite coffee are each benefits to the recipient."

The glow from such small gestures, the study's authors said, lasted up to a day afterwards, and both partners benefited.

While these findings may not comprise an Earth-shaking development in relationship science, they are nonetheless heartening. Instead of racking your brain to find the perfect romantic gesture, it seems, you can do each other a lot of good with accumulated, habitual little kindnesses — and you could start right now.

Steve Collins offers his best guesses on relationships for Metro every two weeks.

Summer's four-letter word: The bikini

FourthWave

It's bikini season.

Two words certain to strike fear into the heart of pretty much any woman.

Being too skinny, too fat, too curvy or too insert-adjective-here has always been a tender topic. But we have tended to talk about body image as an issue for non-feminists — as in, how can feminists help women get over their hang-ups? — without talking about it in personal terms.

I should know — I cycle, run, practise yoga regularly, and look and feel good. But guess what? The idea of buying a bathing suit starts the engine of socially conditioned self-doubt — my thighs are too jiggly, my gut a bit too soft. And, all of sudden, I'm considering signing up for boot camp.

And it's not just me. Several friends (feminist, too!) have signed up for all manner of classes with flowery, pandering names like Flirtygirl Fabulously Firm or BootyCamp. The only thing missing is a pink cosmopolitan after the workout.

Am I betraying my feminist sensibilities? Magazine cover models are Photoshopped to hell. Being too skinny is unhealthy. I fear I'm perpetuating an artificially created standard for women by wanting to look a certain way.

My mind and body are at war.

Maybe I shouldn't be surprised. It's one thing to affirm in our heads that we're fine just the way we are, but it's another to know it in our hearts — and that's as true for feminist women as it is for women who would never define themselves using the F word.

Coming to terms with this may prove to be harder than any amount of pull-ups or push-ups.

The parents of a Foxconn employee who died in January display a portrait of their son as journalists gather at the giant Foxconn plant in Shenzen yesterday.

China iPod maker in damage control

Foxconn Technology Group showed off a motherboard factory, swimming pool and a hotline centre for workers with emotional problems yesterday as the giant company — maker of iPods and other popular gadgets — tried to repair an image damaged by a spate of employee suicides in China.

The company's media-shy chairman, Terry Gou, repeatedly apologized for the 10 deaths this year and told reporters the firm would do everything possible to prevent more suicides.

Nets were put on buildings to stop people from jumping, and about 100 mental health counsellors were being trained.

Gou said he has been having trouble sleeping at night because of the suicides, the latest one reported Tuesday when a 19-year-old man jumped from a building after working at the plant for about a month.

Foxconn was trying to address allegations from labour groups that the workers were killing themselves because of hellish conditions in the factories, which churn out iPhones, Dell computers, Nokia mobile phones and many other big-selling electronics.

Critics allege Foxconn manages its plants with a strict military approach and workers must work too much overtime on assembly lines that move too fast.

Gou insisted the vast majority of workers were happy, and too much attention was being given to the troubled few.

INTEREST RATES The Bank of Canada should start raising interest rates immediately so the economy doesn't become overstimulated, according to a leading international economic agency. The Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development said yesterday that the central bank should tighten its policy lending rate gradually, but without delay. Temporary stimulus measures such as low interest rates could overstimulate the economy if left in place for too long, the organization said.

Oilsands improvements lost in debate: Chief

Canadians can expect to see commercials touting Alberta's controversial oilsands this year, as the industry embarks on a campaign aimed at countering the negative publicity thrust upon it, says the head of Imperial Oil Ltd.

"Certainly, the pictures of open-pit mines and tailings ponds can be powerful. But the end game of the story is frequently missing from these portrayals of oilsands development," Imperial Oil chief executive Bruce March said yesterday in a Toronto lunchtime speech.

Bruce March

"Unfortunately, our record of continuous improvement has been missing from debates on oilsands development, primarily because we, as an industry, have done a poor job of telling our story."

However, environmentalists say the industry's problem is not a failure of communication, but of failing to take strides significant enough to bolster environmental performance to an acceptable level.

The oilsands have been under attack from environmentalists who criticize the so-called "dirty oil" for the amount of greenhouse gases produced when it's refined. As well, the focus on oil-related environmental protection has intensified since an oil rig exploded off the Louisiana coast on April 20, spilling an estimated 757,000 litres of oil per day into the Gulf of Mexico.

BMO's Q2 profit more than doubles to $745 million

REVENUE Bank of Montreal started the Canadian banking sector's second-quarter earning season with a bang yesterday, posting a $745-million profit that beat analyst estimates.

The bank, as expected, reduced its provisions for credit losses during the quarter, which helped results.

BMO had $1.26 per share of net earnings, or $1.28 per share of cash earnings — 18 cents per share ahead of analyst estimates in both cases.

In the comparable quarter last year, BMO had $358 million of net income, or 61 cents per share in net earnings or 63 cents per share of cash earnings.

Revenue was $3 billion, up from $2.65 billion in the second quarter of fiscal 2009.

The provisions for bad loans were reduced by $123 million from a year ago to $249 million for the three months ended April 30.

"While BMO's earnings are distinctly benefitting from declining provisions for credit losses, we note that underlying some of the earnings growth is sustainable revenue increases," wrote Barclays Capital analyst John Aiken in a note.

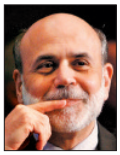
Fed, central banks must stay free of politics: Bernanke

The U.S. Federal Reserve and other central banks must protect their ability to make key economic decisions free from political interference, Fed chairman Ben Bernanke said yesterday.



Ben Bernanke

As governments move ahead on reforms to prevent another global financial crisis like the one in 2008, Bernanke stressed the importance of the Fed and other countries' central banks maintaining their independence over setting interest rates, known as monetary policy.

The Fed, for instance, often must make decisions such as boosting rates to keep inflation in check that are unpopular with politicians but are necessary for a healthy economy.

Politicians generally prefer holding interest rates low, which stimulates the economy and hiring.

"Such gains may be popular at first, and thus helpful in an election campaign, but they are not sustainable and soon evaporate, leaving behind inflationary pressures that worsen the economy's long-term prospects," Bernanke said in speech prepared for delivery to an international conference on the matter.

"Thus political interference in monetary policy can generate undesirable boom-bust cycles that ultimately lead to both a less stable economy and higher inflation," Bernanke added.

Bernanke's comments come as Congress edges closer to completing action on revamping U.S. financial rules, and subjecting the Fed to more oversight. A provision contained in a House-passed bill doesn't carve out monetary policy from congressional audits as current law does.

Paramount Energy closes $60M deal

DEBENTURE Paramount Energy Trust said yesterday it has closed a previously announced $60-million "bought deal" debenture financing.

The trust also said it had mailed out its information circular and proxy statement related to the proposed conversion of the trust to a corporation to be named Perpetual Energy Inc.

Like many trusts, Paramount is converting to a corporate structure because of a new tax regime governing most trusts that is coming into full effect Jan. 1, 2011.

The Calgary-based, natural gas-focused trust said in a news release that it has been evolving a business plan in anticipation of the conversion and "as such, does not presently plan any new significant changes to its business plan or distribution policy following conversion."

Unitholders are to vote on the conversion at a meeting in Calgary June 17. THE CANADIAN PRESS

HOCKEY The hockey sweater worn during one of Canada's greatest sporting moments is on the auction block. Paul Henderson wore the scuffed-up, stick-marked jersey when he buried the winning goal in the 1972 Summit Series against the former Soviet Union. The president of a Montreal-area auction house says Henderson's jersey could be the most valuable piece of hockey memorabilia of all time. Classic Auctions president Marc Juteau expects the heavy-knit artifact to fetch more than a Bobby Orr rookie sweater that was recently auctioned off for nearly $200,000.

TENNIS Top-ranked Roger Federer endured one tense set and two rain delays before eliminating Alejandro Falla of Colombia 7-6 (4), 6-2, 6-4 in the second round of the French Open yesterday.

NHL Flyers goalie Brian Boucher returned to practice after suffering a knee injury and hopes he can back up Michael Leighton in the Stanley Cup final. Boucher was Philadelphia's post-season starter until he sprained a ligament in his left knee in Game 5 of the Eastern Conference semifinals.

Comeback continues

(Celtics lead series 3-2)

Celtics 92 Magic 113

Not ready to go home just yet, the only place the Orlando Magic are headed is back to Boston.

Halfway to history.

Taking another step toward overcoming an improbable 3-0 series deficit, Dwight Howard had 21 points and 10 rebounds to lead the Magic to a 113-92 victory over the Celtics last night in Game 5 of the Eastern Conference finals.

"We just all believe," guard Jameer Nelson said. "We all believe. We know we can do it, one game at a time."

A series that looked like a sweep a few days ago now has the Celtics taking a slim 3-2 lead into a pressure-packed Game 6 in Boston tomorrow night.

The Celtics are facing the possibility of playing it without Kendrick Perkins after their starting centre picked up his seventh technical foul of the playoffs, a mandatory suspension unless it is overturned.

A potential Game 7 would be in Orlando.

No NBA team has won a series after losing the first three games.

The Magic, seemingly lifeless after a blowout defeat in Game 3, suddenly have hope to be the first. They broke out of their series-long shooting slump, making 13 of 25 three-pointers. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

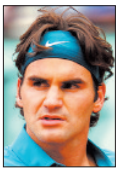
Rain can't slow Federer

Apparently, even Roger Federer, with his record 16 Grand Slam titles, was in need of some advice on a wet and windy day yesterday at the French Open.

Forced off court by two rain delays, and "pushed," as he put it, by a player with a career record below .500, Federer turned to Swiss Davis Cup captain Severin Luthi for words of wisdom during the breaks. Told to be more aggressive early, then to use more drop shots late, Federer wound up with a 7-6 (4), 6-2, 6-4 victory over Alejandro Falla in the second round.

"Those were good things he told me," said the top-ranked Federer, the French Open's defending champion for the first time. "Those little details make a crucial difference."



Federer

The defending women's champion, sixth-seeded Svetlana Kuznetsova, encountered quite a bit more trouble than Federer did — she faced four match points in the second set against 41st-ranked Andrea Petkovic and was so distraught she whacked herself in the leg with her racket.

Petkovic made matters easier with unforced groundstroke errors on all four of those chances to win, though, and Kuznetsova eventually came all the way back for a 4-6, 7-5, 6-4 victory — but not before wasting three match points of her own.

Also into the third round was No. 2 Venus Williams, who walloped one serve at 128 m.p.h. in a 6-2, 6-4 victory over Arantxa Parra Santonja.

Other winners included No. 3 Caroline Wozniacki, No. 14 Flavia Pennetta, No. 15 Aravane Rezai, No. 19 Nadia Petrova and Williams' next opponent, No. 26 Dominika Cibulkova, a semifinalist last year. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Simple, balanced, clean, classic, uncluttered.

Modern design, which revolves around simplistic and unique decor that flows easily and orderly from room to room, typically involves these key traits.

Toronto interior designer Renee Shostack says modern design begins with the shell.

"If you have a house that has blue carpeting or wallpaper, you are never going to get a modern look," says Shostack, whose company, The Added Touch, specializes in transforming homes into modern Meccas.

Shostack says home owners must begin with paint and floor colours that are consistent throughout.

"You can't change floors — tile here, wood here. You have to have one universal, solid look."

Modern doesn't necessarily mean white floor to ceiling, although all-white art galleries are common, as the perfect background for contemporary art. Limit colours and emphasize white, greys and black — or choose one accent colour and stick to it.

Avoid flowery and wooden designs and stay away from heavy pieces.

"Modern to me is everything in its place," Shostack said. "Even with accessories, there has to be a place for everything."

The Chelsea Leather Bed makes a statement of classic modernity, mixed with ample helpings of comfort. The solid frame is covered from head (board) to foot in bycast leather. The padded headboard makes reading or breakfast in bed comfortable. White, brown or black. Urban Barn, Queen $1,199; King $1,399, urbanbarn.com.

The Parker Spirits Cabinet's two bar-top leaves flip open to perch drinks and snacks, while revealing generous bottle storage. Front door drops down to create an open serving area. Crate & Barrel, $329, crateandbarrel.com.

Enhance cocktail hour with the sleek and sculptural Martini Side Table, with a fluid shape and pedestal base. Hollow and lightweight, it is easy to move around, while white and persimmon are powder coated for longevity outdoors. West Elm, $159, westelm.com.

Host the perfect SATC2 party

DecorMoment

It is a very exciting night for fashionistas as the movie Sex and the City 2 debuts in North American theatres. My prediction is that the movie will be this summer's biggest style influence for fashion and decor!

The inspiration starts when characters Carrie, Miranda, Samantha and Charlotte head off to Abu Dhabi for some fun and frolicking. The glamorous wardrobe and stylish hotels and restaurants are truly inspiring. I plan on celebrating the debut over the weekend in real SATC style by hosting a party. Are you celebrating? If you're planning a party too, here are a few elements to incorporate:

Dress code: For the ladies it's all about updated 1970s glamour; think wide pants, chiffon blouses and silk bandanas. It's reported that $1.8 million was spent on wardrobing this movie. I'm betting that wardrobe will be imitated for the hottest summer looks. The Halston-Heritage stretch jersey white cocktail dress ($375) is a must-have if you are hosting a Sex and the City party. Carrie Bradshaw (played by Sarah Jessica Parker) flaunts the dress in the movie and on the movie's poster. The Halston-Heritage collection is available in Canada only at 18 selected Bay stores.

Decor: Think ethnic, exotic and Indian/Moroccan inspired home accessories. The place to go is your local Pier 1 store as their summer selection is ripe for the picking at this time with exotic-inspired merchandise in stock; my favorite is the Pagoda Outdoor Umbrella for $169 (pier1.com). Everything from Moroccan lanterns, bright fabrics and fancy umbrellas in colours of orange, turquoise and green will transform your balcony or deck into an exotic getaway for the party.

Music: The movie's Sex and the City Original Soundtrack is a fantastic lineup of familiar girl-power songs sung by new and established artists. Warn your neighbours about the music as it's a collection of old favorites (like Liza Minnelli singing Beyonce's Single Ladies) that will make you want to crank up the volume.

This exotic party will be just what I need to get me in the mood to go see this must-see movie.

Karl Lohnes is passionate about good decor and wants to help you have a beautiful home; no matter what your budget or style.

And for the food...

- Nothing will set a more decadent tone at my party than fruit, chocolate and champagne.
- A simple and fabulous-looking snack is fresh fruit kabobs: chunks of fresh pineapple, kiwi and cantaloupe are marinated in Grand Mariner, then put on skewers and displayed on large platters of shaved ice.
- The Sex And The City chocolate collection from Laura Secord features Champagne truffles, white chocolate raspberry truffles, 70 per cent coca truffles, Dulce de leche truffles and cappuccino truffles. The bright pink boxes scream glamour and the small box containing four special chocolates ($10) will make fabulous take-away gifts.

Metro columnist Karl Lohnes writes about everything you'll need for your very own Sex and the City 2 party — poster above.

Good listening skills required

LAURA EGGERTSON
for Metro Canada

Brad Allard was selling hearing aids in Oregon when he made a house call one day to visit a four-year-old girl whose hearing had been damaged by meningitis. She was napping when he arrived, but when she awoke, she pointed to the hearing aid and then to her ear.

"That was it," says Allard, 54. "That day I thought, 'I want to be an audiologist.'"

Allard realized that if the child — who couldn't speak — could clearly communicate her need for the hearing aid that opened up the world of sound, then he wanted to be an audiologist to help others like her.

Unlike hearing aid dispensers, audiologists not only test people's hearing, they help to prevent and treat hearing loss. They prescribe and fit hearing aids, teach people skills to cope with hearing loss, counsel patients and family members, and even help people with auditory processing disorders learn more effectively.

So Allard earned his master's degree in audiology, and in 1990 moved to Toronto for a hospital job. Today, he has his own practice in Toronto.

"In any given day, I'll test people's hearing, talk to them about the degree and nature of any hearing loss, and about how it affects their lives," says Allard. "I'll help them understand it, accept it, and help people get over any denial."

A good audiologist needs to be patient, empathetic and, ironically, a good listener, Allard says. In addition, he or she needs to have a sense for the science and the acoustics of audiology.

"That all comes with the training," he says. "It's an art and a science."

Audiologists often work closely with ear, nose and throat specialists and other doctors, with speech therapists, nurses, social workers, teachers, occupational and physical therapists.

In Canada, audiologists need a minimum of a master's degree in audiology and require an internship in a hospital, hearing clinic, rehabilitation or other facility before graduation.

- In Alberta, audiologists must be registered with the Alberta College of Speech-Language Pathologists and Audiologists.

Social workers in hospitals help patients navigate the health care system and connect them to available resources.

Jane Mahoney's decision to become a social worker grew naturally from the values she watched her mother exhibit, caring for her grandfather on their family farm near Low, Que.

"It was traditional in the Irish Catholic community to take care of your own family," Mahoney explains.

That's why Mahoney, 44, gravitated to social work after taking her undergraduate degree in criminology from Carleton University. Over the last 20 years in Ottawa, she has helped patients and their families access the practical supports and resources to cope with injuries and illness.

Currently, Mahoney works with brain-injured patients as part of a multidisciplinary team in the neurosurgery program at the Ottawa Hospital.

"People who come to hospital are overwhelmed and unsure of where to turn," Mahoney says. "In crisis mode, people can't imagine how they will ever cope. We're helping them to realize that they can."

Social workers in hospitals conduct psychosocial assessments — assessing whether people have a place to live, can afford their medications, have support when they leave the hospital, and are prepared for how their illness or injury will affect their lives. All of those factors are critical to the success of their recovery.

Social workers also identify the stressors patients and their families face, and help them navigate the health care system and connect them to resources to reduce their stress.

Full-time social workers in hospitals often have caseloads of 15-20 patients or more. Good social workers demonstrate empathy and compassion analyze situations quickly and have good problem-solving and communication skills, Mahoney says. Often, social workers act as a bridge between patients, families and members of the medical team.

To become a registered social worker in Alberta, social workers must join the Alberta College of Social Workers. Most hospital social workers hold, at minimum, a master's degree.

The long and short of it

Guys: Go for colour and patterns down below this summer

Red Chaps short, $60, The Bay

RICK MCGINNIS
for Metro Canada

Before you can talk about what kind of shorts look good on a man, it helps to clear the air by hearing from women what sort of calf-revealing summer trousers might act as an effective female repellent.

Afya Francisco is a professional stylist and creative director at The Style House, and has firm opinions on men's fashion failures. "You can never say never because these things have a way of cycling around again, but when younger guys were wearing their shorts halfway down their bums, that did nothing for anybody, so we don't want to go there again."

Francisco is quick' to evoke memories of the late '70s for other shorts flops: "Mini shorts and cutoff denim — two things that should never enter a man's vocabulary." Crystal Hartman, a marketing specialist at Mark's Work Wearhouse is quick to concur. "The cut-off denims I would have to say are a no-no that I'd like to see not come back."

Thankfully, trends in men's shorts this year are more restrained, though hardly lacking colour. Both Francisco and Hartman note that checks and gingham, in particular, are big, and Francisco gives credit to Ralph Lauren, whose gingham short is currently available at high end retailers like Holt Renfrew.

Hartman is also seeing gingham, along with plaids and herringbones — "The gingham print is really big. A lot of it right now is about colours and patterns." And since shorts are the only garment where hemlines matter for men, she says that 11 inches, just above the knee, is the standard for versatile, even dressy shorts for men, with hiking shorts running an inch or two higher, and baggy, beach-friendly board shorts running longer — almost 10 whole inches longer.

Walking shorts, $69, quagmiregolf.com

With an unseasonably warm spring, interest in shorts is apparently peaking early this year, in tandem with a longing for better weather. "As soon as it does get nice, after people stop hibernating, you see a big explosion in shorts," says Hartman. "People are just happy to have some nice weather."

While Canada isn't Bermuda, the dress short is making some traction here, paired with blazers and, says Francisco, in fabrics like linen, which are both dressy and seasonally appropriate. Since shorts draw attention to socks and shoes, she says that men have to pay attention to what they put on their feet. "A great boat shoe is still casual, actually, but it is a little more updated Americana — that's a great look with a short."

As for socks, if you must wear them, Francisco to stick with dress socks "if you have to wear socks at all."

Sex sequel a bloated affair

Sex and the City 2

Director: Michael Patrick King
Stars: Sarah Jessica Parker, Kim Cattrall
Classification: 18A
Rating: ⊕⊕½

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

Although Sex and the City 2 will surely draw a comparative sum to its highly successful big-screen predecessor, someone should've thrown an "interfriendsion" for this TV hit-turned-film franchise.

At over 140 minutes, this bloated, self-indulgent flick may fulfill a few fantasies but as a film, it's uninspired.

Set two years after Carrie's (Sarah Jessica Parker) marriage in the first film, the Manhattan-based novelist becomes disillusioned by the fact Big (Chris Noth) is settling into domestic life. How fortunate then that she and the girls are invited by perpetual floozy Samantha (Kim Cattrall) on a trip to Abu Dhabi to reflect on their respective crises through cocktails, shopping and occasionally offending the locals with unwelcome acts of sexual freedom.

Carrie and co. return in Sex and the City 2.

Filmmaker Michael Patrick King may be trying to send a message, and indeed Samantha publicly latching onto a dude's crotch at the hotel pool exhibits sexual liberation, but the free-thinking-American-in-Abu-Dhabi schtick ends up more arrogant than enlightening.

Nevertheless, this sequel isn't just about cultural disparity. King shovels a slew of double entendres that will sneak giggles from most female fans.

But his script is too lean where it works best: When characters are paired off in vulnerable conversation about the hardships of motherhood or marriage and not when they're busy asking the hotelier if a visiting soccer team "brought their balls."

Still, fans will get what they likely crave — a flashy gay wedding, the return of an ex-boyfriend and Liza Minnelli singing a rendition of Beyoncé's Single Ladies that almost made me nostalgic for Alvin and the Chipmunks: The Squeakquel. Almost.

Julie Walking Home

Miranda Otto rises above a weak script to shine in this 2002 drama as a Canadian wife and mother who's dealt a double blow: Her husband (William Fichtner) is cheating, and her son (Ryan Smith) has cancer. She goes abroad to consult a faith healer (Lothaire Bluteau) recommended by her father's fiancee. His powers appear to work on the boy, but things go downhill after he and Julie become lovers.

Stone Temple Pilots

Album: Stone Temple Pilots
Label: Atlantic/Warner
Rating: ⊕⊕

A LOT HAS happened in the nine years since Stone Temple Pilots's last record was released. There have been new bands, feuds and stints in drug rehab, but somehow Scott Weiland and the DeLeo brothers have put that behind them to release a new STP record. If only they had stayed separated. This disc is mostly made up of — not surprisingly — bland '90s-era rock. Weiland unfortunately channels Dylan on Between the Lines, while other songs, including Huckleberry. Crumble, dabble in bar band blues. There are some meaty riffs and they do sound like a cohesive group that's having fun, but this is a long way off from the foursome's Vasoline days.

Janelle Monae

Album: The ArchAndroid
Label: Warner
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕⊕

THE PREMISE IS kind of silly, but, at times, the music is ultra cool. The ArchAndroid is a continuation of the sci-fi hip-hopera Janelle Monae introduced with her debut LP Metropolis. It's hard to imagine that anyone actually buys this stuff in order to follow the latest chapter in Metropolis' fight for freedom from the evil Great Divide. On the other hand, you may be interested in finding out what Outkast's Big Boi has been doing lately. He's featured on Tightrope, the very fine first single off this intriguing record. There's a wonderfully organic voodoo-jazz thing running throughout that keeps The ArchAndroid's futuristic themes firmly grounded in the culture of '50s America.

Altadore bistro goes bold

Dinner for two with drinks: $50
Signature Dish: Cioppino

ANDREE LAU/FOR METRO CALGARY

Altadore's meatloaf rolled with prosciutto and mozzarella.

The chef at the Altadore Dining Lounge must firmly believe in the motto, "Go big or go home," in offering bold takes on conventional neighbourhood pub/bistro food.

Altadore's puttanesca pizza ($12) is a golden revelation of halved baby tomatoes, kalamata olives, capers, parmesan and a chunky marinara sauce. Breaded spiced halibut pieces are a delightful and fearless final topping.

Coconut shrimp ($9.50) are skilfully done so you can actually taste the sweet shrimp and coconut in the batter.

Altadore's cioppino ($26.50) is the priciest menu item but one of the city's best deals. A daring offering in land-locked Calgary — much less a strip-mall bistro — the tomato-saffron broth is jammed with tender squid, fresh fish, meaty mussels and scallops, and a perfectly cooked lobster tail. Garlic bread is vital for sopping up every last drop.

The meatloaf ($18) is cleverly rolled with layers of prosciutto and mozzarella, topped with a bright marinara or peppercorn gravy. A piping hot side of mac and cheese is a rich meal unto itself.

Pastas, sandwiches, and pizzas average $12.

Altadore's culinary hits are in spite of the atmosphere: a strange hybrid of upscale bistro furnishings, sports on overhead TVs, and loud cliquey chatting by staff/friends at the bar.

On the couch again

SUPPOSE THAT'S BETTER THAN BEING ON THE LEDGE Tom Cruise is finally opening up about his infamous couch-jumping incident on Oprah Winfrey's talk show five years ago.

"What happened, happened. I wanted the audience to be happy just like I wanted to make my sisters and my mother happy when I did those skits as a kid," Cruise tells Esquire.

"But I'll take responsibility for my actions."

What really surprised Cruise, he admits, was the reactions it garnered.

"Afterward, wild things were being said about me, and once they're in the ether, there's nothing you can do about it," he said.

"It felt like being the new kid in the schoolyard again and the other kids are whispering and whispering about you and suddenly you hear what they're saying, and you think, 'What? That didn't happen. Look at the reality of the situation.'"

No laughing matter

NEITHER ARE HIS MOVIES Comic Jon Lovitz and others are being sued by the Los Angeles Dodgers over claims they failed to pay nearly $100,000 US for season tickets for the 2010 baseball season.

Delaware-based Dodger Tickets LLC filed the breach-of-contract lawsuit Monday in Los Angeles.

The lawsuit claims Lovitz and 100 other individuals entered into a written agreement in March 2008 to buy three dugout club seats for all baseball games played at Dodger Stadium in 2008, 2009 and 2010.

The lawsuit alleges the group refused to pay $95,400 for the 2010 season.

The company is seeking $95,400 and other unspecified damages in the lawsuit. Attempts to contact Lovitz were unsuccessful.

Perry pair the next Brangelina?

THE REAL QUESTION IS WHEN WILL COMBINING CELEB NAMES JUMP THE SHARK? Katy Perry is so satisfied with her relationship with Russell Brand that she can't help associating herself with some famous company.

"I do feel like the new Brangelina, with his movie coming out on Tuesday, Get Him to the Greek," she tells Ryan Seacrest, comparing them to Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie.

"Everything is happening at the same time, which is somewhat of a blessing because if one of us wasn't working, we'd get annoyed with each other."

And as for that wedding they have coming up?

"I think it's going to be small because we have so much business going on in our lives," Perry says.

No sense crying over spilt milk

HOW ABOUT CRYING OVER FLOUNDERING CAREERS? There's officially no more milkshake in Nas and Kelis' marriage.

Court filings show a judge on Friday dissolved the union between singer Kelis Rogers and rapper Nas, whose full name is Nasir Jones.

No other details were revealed.

Rogers, best known for her feisty tune Milkshake, filed for divorce last May, citing "irreconcilable differences."

Jones, considered one of rap's most popular artists, just released a collaborative album with reggae's Damian Marley.

Documents show the couple married in July 2003. Jones was ordered in December to pay more than $51,000 a month to Rogers and their infant son. Calls to Jones' attorney were not immediately returned. The office for Rogers' attorney said she declined to comment.

Metro Recipe of the Day

Quick Fish Tacos

Recipe submitted by Paula Bowman
PREP TIME: 10 MINUTES
COOK TIME: 10 MINUTES

INGREDIENTS:

1 tbsp olive oil, plus more for greasing sheet pan
1/2 white onion, very thinly sliced
2 cups ice water
1 tbsp lime juice
1 tbsp finely chopped jalapeno pepper
1/4 tsp ground cumin
1 1/4 lb tilapia fillets, or other firm white fish (e.g. haddock, mahi mahi or bass)|
8 (6-inch) whole-wheat or corn tortillas
2 cups finely shredded red cabbage
1 cup deli fresh store-bought salsa, drained
1/2 cup fresh cilantro leaves for garnish, optional

METHOD:

1. Preheat broiler to high. Line a rimmed sheet pan with tinfoil, lightly grease with olive oil and set aside. Stack tortillas and wrap in tinfoil, set aside. Place onion slices in ice water for 10 minutes, drain well and set aside.
2. Place wrapped tortillas on bottom rack of oven for 10-15 minutes until warmed through.
3. Meanwhile, in a small bowl, combine lime juice, olive oil, jalapeno and cumin and stir. Arrange tilapia on prepared sheet pan and brush tops of fillets with jalapeno mixture. Broil fish 3 to 4-inches from heat until just cooked through, about 7 - 10 minutes. Break fish into large chunks and transfer to serving plate.
4. To assemble tacos, fill tortillas with fish, onions, cabbage, salsa, drizzle with lime sour cream and garnish with cilantro, if desired.
